XIII International Conference on the Applications of Magnetic Resonance in Food Science

June 07 - 10, 2016, Karlsruhe/Germany

Committee

G. Guthausen, KIT (Chair)
M. Bunzel, KIT
T. Kuballa, CVUA Karlsruhe
B. Luy, KIT
M. J. Rist, Max Rubner Institut
H. P. Schuchmann, KIT

Organizer

Forschungs-Gesellschaft Verfahrens-Technik
e.V. (GVT), Frankfurt/Main

SCOPE

The conference covers multiple aspects of the application of magnetic resonance to food and food products in a series of oral and poster presentations, dealing with new techniques in low and high field NMR, quantitative NMR (qNMR), foodomics, food authenticity, quality and safety as well as imaging and diffusometry.

This conference series is recognised as the principle forum to get insights into and discuss applications of magnetic resonance to diverse food science related questions. It is also regarded as a great environment to network and share views and experiences with magnetic resonance experts from academia and industry who are committed to using MR tools to improve our knowledge on complex food systems.

The organizers expect 150-200 international delegates from industry, academia and public institutions.
